Tentative Outline

Special Issue for CURRENT PRACTICE OF PHENYTOIN – REVISITED

Guest Editors: Tahamina Begum & Faruque Reza

Affiliation: Department of Neurosciences, School of Medical Sciences, University Sains Malaysia, 16150, Kubang Kerian Kota Bharu, Kelantan, Malaysia.

Aims and scope:
Phenytoin is a vital medication for basic health system. Phenytoin has been used in various types of seizure control, arrhythmia, trigeminal neuralgia, muscular dystrophy and in other disease conditions, the objectives of the proposed issue is to provide an in-depth picture of the recent practice and principles of phenytoin use.

Keywords:
Phenytoin, Physio-chemical properties, Mode of action, Metabolism and excretion, Side effects and drug interaction, Genetic variations, prescribing

Subtopics:
Physical and Chemical Characteristics of Phenytoin
How Phenytoin acts: general and molecular aspects
Pharmacokinects
Adverse effects
Pharmacogenetics of Phenytoin
Phenytoin prescribing

Schedule:
Manuscript submission deadline: June 2015
Peer Review Due: July 2015
Revision Due: September 2015
Notification of acceptance by the Guest Editor: October 2015
Final manuscripts due: October 2015